ultimately moves beyond these to propose a new cultural aesthetic that aims to center black women and their philosophies book jacket with the continued expansion of the literary canon multicultural works of modern literary fiction and autobiography have assumed an increasing importance for students and scholars of american literature this exciting new series assembles key documents and criticism concerning these works that have so recently become central components of the American literature curriculum each casebook will reprint documents relating to the work's historical context and reception present the best in critical essays and when possible feature an interview of the author the series will provide for the first time an accessible forum in which readers can come to a fuller understanding of these contemporary masterpieces and the unique aspects of American ethnic racial or cultural experience that they so ably portray this casebook to Morrison's classic novel presents seven essays that represent the best in contemporary criticism of the book in addition the book includes a poem and an abolitionist's tract published after a slave named Margaret Garner killed her child to save her from slavery the very incident Morrison fictionalizes in Beloved faced with Eudora Welty's preference for the oblique in literary performances some have assumed that Welty was not concerned with issues of race or even that she was perhaps ambivalent toward racism this collection counters those assumptions as it examines Welty's handling of race the color line and Jim Crow segregation and sheds new light on her views about the patterns insensitivities blindness and atrocities of whiteness contributors to this volume show that Welty addressed whiteness and race in her earliest stories her photography and her first novel Delta Wedding in subsequent work including The Golden Apples The Optimist's Daughter and her memoir One Writer's Beginnings she made the color line and white privilege visible revealing the gaping distances between lives lived in shared space but separated by social hierarchy and segregation even when black characters hover in the margins of her fiction they point readers toward complex lives and the black body is itself full of meaning in her work several essays suggest that Welty represented race like gender and power as a performance scripted by whiteness her black characters in particular recognize whiteface and blackface as performances especially comical when white characters are unaware of their role play Eudora Welty whiteness and race also makes clear that welty recognized white material advantage and black economic deprivation as part of a cycle of race and poverty in america and that she connected this history to lives on either side of the color line to relationships across it and to an uneasy hierarchy of white classes within the presumed monolith of whiteness contributors mae miller claxton susan v donaldson julia eichelberger sarah ford jean c griffith rebecca mark susanne marrs donnie mcmahand david mcwhirter harriet pollack keri watson patricia yaeger in black aliveness or a poetics of being kevin quashie imagines a black world in which one encounters black being as it is rather than only as it exists in the shadow of anti black violence as such he makes a case for black aliveness even in the face of the persistence of death in black life and black study centrally quashie theorizes aliveness through the aesthetics of poetry reading poetic inhabitation in black feminist literary texts by lucille clifton audre lorde june jordan toni morrison and evie shockley among others showing how their philosophical and creative thinking constitutes worldmaking this worldmaking conceptualizes blackness as capacious relational beyond the normative terms of recognition blackness as a condition of oneness reading for poetic aliveness then becomes a means of exploring black being rather than nonbeing and animates the ethical question how to be in this way quashie offers a black feminist philosophy of being which is nothing less than a philosophy of the becoming of the black world ten reviews and seventeen essays present critical commentary on the novel beloved by toni morrison this book answers the title question by drawing on empirical results from linguistics and the other cognitive sciences the author argues that good writing is fluent writing where fluency in writing is similar to fluency in speech in that both are naturally derived from motivated participation in a language community in the case of writing the community is that of writers and readers fluent writing can be learned through avid reading but like fluent speech the evidence indicates that it can't be taught a yalsa excellence in nonfiction finalist linda barrett osborne's this land is our land explores the history of american immigration from the early colonization of the continent to the contemporary discussions involving undocumented aliens american attitudes toward immigrants are paradoxical on the one hand we see our country as a haven for the poor and oppressed anyone no matter his or her background can find freedom here and achieve the american dream on the other hand depending on prevailing economic conditions fluctuating feelings about race and ethnicity and fear of foreign political and labor agitation we set boundaries and restrictions on who may come to this country and whether they may stay as citizens this book explores the way government policy and popular responses to immigrant groups evolved throughout us history particularly between 1800 and 1965 the book concludes with a summary of events up to contemporary times as immigration again becomes a hot
